CAMROSE LUTHERAN COLLEGE
LIBRARY

This year a precedent is set, the yearbook will not be dedicated to any one individual, but instead, to a small group of individuals. For years too numerous to count this group of people has been almost totally ignored. Unnoticed yet undaunted, they have worked on silently in high schools and institutions of higher learning throughout the civilized world. They have received few words of praise and have shouldered criticism that would have made Atlas break under similar pressure.

But who are these industrious unknown? The librarians that work on Sunday nights . . . good guess, but maybe their turn will come next year. This year the yearbook is dedicated to the yearbook staff.

Dedications also go out to Ted Wings' dog, Sid Zorks' Mother, and all the other people who made Camrose Lutheran College a good place to go to.

COMMENCEMENT

"Would you tell me which way I ought to go from here?"
"That depends a good deal on where you want to go," said the cat.
"I don't much care where . . . ," said Alice.
"Then it doesn't matter which way you go," said the cat.
". . . so long as I get SOMEWHERE," Alice added as an explanation.
"Oh you're sure to do that," said the cat, "If you only walk long enough."

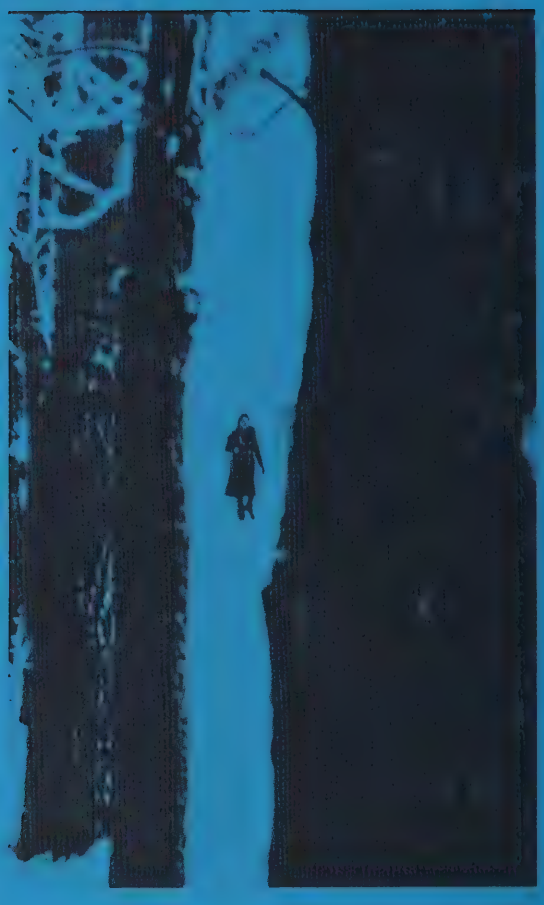
LITERATURE



SONNET

When walking down the road sometimes I feel
Like shouting out and reaching to the sky
To break the spell and prove that I am real
And maybe stop myself from wondering why.

I never thought that I could feel the mist
Of dawn as though I were a God-made thing
Without the fronts of women not yet kissed
Or as a child that's learned about the spring.

But now it seems that I have found a peace
A private world removed from here and now
That teaches me a way, not how to cease
My struggle, but to take a well-planned bow.

I close my mind to useless thoughts of hate
Convince myself that here and now can't wait.

CAROUSEL

Swirling, swirling - - round we go,
First I'm high and then you're low.
Hopping, skipping, jumping, turning
Never standing still.

Silence screams within our eardrums
Faster, quickly now we go
Laughter rings amid the air
That blotty, reddish air.

Now we start to slow our pace
The noise is going softer,
The air turns green and blue and pink
And silence leaves us still.

President's Message

D. T. Niles, an Asian Christian, speaks of the smallness of God. He became small enough to take on human flesh. He quotes a poet who said,

"Thou cam'st a little baby thing
That made a woman cry."

I hope that as a result of your encounter with this academic community and this company of scholars and learners at Camrose Lutheran you have become big enough to live a human life.

God became small enough to walk in human shoes. We can become, by His grace, big enough to walk in human shoes.

I hope that the knowledge and the wisdom that you have gained will only create a hunger and thirst for more learning and for more truth and that you will increase in wisdom and stature and in favor with both God and man, big enough to lead the human life.

Pastor

Never in the Twentieth Century has interest in religion been more keen than it is today on university campuses across North America. Students are flocking to courses on world religions, comparative religion, Judaism, the New Testament, and others. First-rate theologians are among the few educators still in demand.

In the midst of this awakening religious interest on secular campuses, many church colleges have apologized for, made light of, and downplayed the religious aspects of their program and their life. You who are becoming alumni must not let Camrose Lutheran College make this mistake. The Christian faith must remain at the very core of what we do here. If you doubt this, wait 10 or 15 years and then reflect on how much the Christian atmosphere at CLC has meant in your life. Faith to you all, and thanks.

Stephen O. Swanson
Acting Campus Pastor

Missing: Jane Rawlings.

The time has come to say goodbye. What a good year this has been! I trust that not only have you enjoyed this year, but have used it wisely, so as to provide a stepping-stone towards the future. When life seems futile it helps to remember what the writer of Ecclesiastes has said, "To everything there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven."

The Student's Council has had a rewarding and challenging year. Thank you for your support. It was encouraging to note the interest with which you shared. It has been a rare honor and privilege to serve as your President. May the wind of blessing and happiness touch your life.

Student Union President
Jerome Manchur
